CORE SERVICES

REAL ESTATE STRATEGY

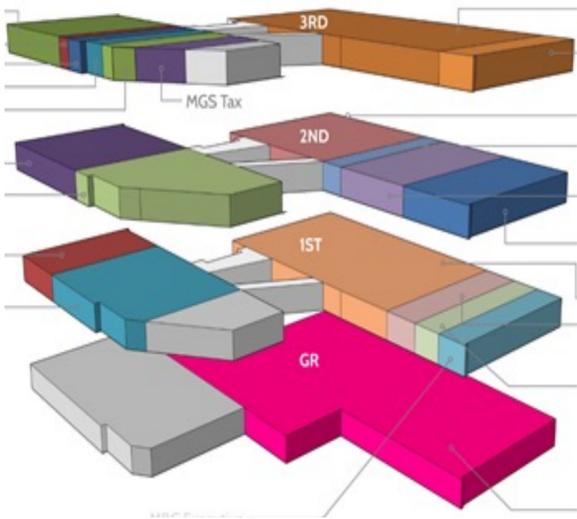

Optimizing and aligning real estate with business needs.

Trends in office design and ways of working has long influenced real estate footprints. As the purpose of the office begins to shift, there is likely to be a fundamental change in how much space is needed, where it should be located, and the occupation model (own, lease, flex space or coworking).

While there are many options in the headlines, it is important that your approach supports the long-term future of your business. With so much change, what metrics should be the basis of your decisions?

An impartial, bespoke, business led analysis of your real estate needs is essential. With the potential for significant savings, this step is more important than ever.

This is where we come in. CRUX supports organizations using our time-tested methodology to ensure your real estate strategy is right-sized.

CHANGE MANAGEMENT

Guiding your people through important workplace changes.

It is no surprise that change of any size creates uncertainty within organizations. Thoughtful, human-centric approaches to managing change have become more important than ever for organizations of all sizes, especially those that are large-scale.

In organizations, even minor shifts can create significant ripples across the entire business, for better or worse. The health of your organization hinges on your ability to engage and guide your people through changes.

CRUX believes workplace change management is key to ensuring your intentions for future ways of working are successfully achieved through people and place. Our approach enhances employee buy-in, encourages optimal utilization, and reduces human resource challenges.

We work to ensure your people, and developing systems are supported as your organization shifts to the future way of working uncovered through our Workplace Strategy process.

Together we can ensure employees are engaged and guided through the change to the new way of working and equipped to excel at their roles.

WORKPLACE STRATEGY

Enhancing your workplace flexibility for hybrid working.

There are many good reasons why the office is still an essential part of an organization. When well-executed, it is the beating heart of the business, a place for community and collaboration. As technology has enabled a major shift in the way work can be done, flexible workplaces are taking centre stage in order to keep offices relevant and useful for businesses.

When facilities do not support the needs of employees, organizations are missing key benefits. A functional, purpose-built workplace strategy maximizes the performance of your employees and becomes a destination that compels utilisation.

Our proven process takes the guesswork out of workplace design, utilising data from deep engagement to ensure your path forward fits your organizations unique needs.

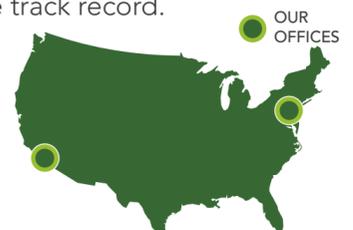

We specialize in the design and implementation of workplace solutions which deliver innovative and effective environments within an overall real estate strategy, that is aligned to your business needs.
